

Devon Brown, PhD
Director, Leadership Development
FCCServices, Inc

Devon Brown is the Director of Leadership Development at FCCServices, a consulting firm focused on providing organizational effectiveness services to the Farm Credit System, agribusiness and food supply chain companies. At FCCServices, Devon is responsible for managing the Leadership Development Program and consulting with clients in the areas of leadership and team development, executive coaching, strategic talent management, change and transition, and strategic planning.

Prior to FCCServices, Devon worked as a faculty member, conducted research, and taught communication and leadership development courses at the University of Denver, Daniels College of Business; the University of Waikato, New Zealand, Management Communication Department, and the University of Colorado at Boulder, Communication Department.

From 1992 to 2000, Devon was president of a training and development firm, Bridging the Gap Consulting. His diverse client list includes such organizations as: AT&T, Bank of America, Coors, Kaiser Permanente, Dave & Busters, Deloitte and Touche, First Data Corporation, Fresh Produce, Hewlett-Packard, Monsanto, Housing and Urban Development—Office of Inspector General, Ralston Purina, and the University of Denver—Daniels College of Business.

Devon holds a Ph.D. and M.A in Organizational Communication from the University of Colorado (2007) and a B.A. in Conflict Studies from Earlham College. Devon lives in Boulder, CO with his wife, Amanda, and his two children, Kai (7) and Skyler (5).